

Hear that pounding?

It's your heart. The engine that won't quit. Not here. Not now. It's what drives you from the first moment of the game to the final screaming second. Because when you're an athlete, you live for play. Student-athletes in NAIA colleges and universities across the country play their hearts out every time they put on their school colors and step up to compete. They are part of an organization that understands an athlete's need to dig deep, to bond and to go beyond. That same drive is at the heart of the NAIA, where the sweat never dries, the turf is still shredded, and the court is always scuffed with a thousand sole marks.
